Police Activity Statistics (Feb–May)

Overall Trend

- Total documented activity increased from 578 incidents in February to 718 in May, a 24.2% increase.
- Activity peaked in April (750) before declining slightly in May, while remaining well above February and March levels.
- Police activity increased substantially during the spring months, driven primarily by proactive enforcement and visibility initiatives. Direct patrol activity increased more than fivefold, while business checks and traffic enforcement showed sustained growth throughout the reporting period. At the same time, several traffic-related service calls declined, and medical calls remained stable. The data suggest a strategic emphasis on proactive policing, traffic safety, and community engagement during the period reviewed.
