What's In Your Drinking Water?

More than 43 million people living in the United States rely on private wells as the source of their drinking water.

Yet, the Federal Safe Drinking Water Act and, in most cases, state laws do not regulate the quality and safety of water from private wells.

Rather, individual homeowners are responsible for maintaining their private wells and for monitoring their water quality.

This lack of regular monitoring makes periodic assessments of private wells that are conducted at the national, regional, and local level important sources of information about well water quality.

For example, a 2009 report from the National Water-Quality Assessment Program of the U.S. Geological Survey surveyed water-quality conditions of more than 2,000 private wells across the United States between 1991-2004.

The study measured more than 200 properties and contaminants—including pH, bacteria, major ions, nutrients, trace elements, radon, pesticides, and volatile organic compounds.

The high number of contaminants assessed and the broad geographic range of the study provide a foundation for improved understanding of the water quality of the major U.S. aquifers tapped by private wells.

To read the report, visit: pubs.usgs.gov/circ/circ1332/

To ensure that your drinking water is safe, have your well water tested annually for coliform bacteria and every three years for pH and total dissolved solids.

In addition, if you can determine any potential contaminants that threaten your water supply—such as nitrate, arsenic or radon—you can include other tests and analyses to ensure the safety of your water.

Be sure to use a certified laboratory and keep records to facilitate year-to-year comparisons.

To obtain a drinking water sampling kit, to locate a local certified testing lab, or for help with questions about the tests that are right for your sample, contact:

Planning a Getaway?

Recent Thefts Increase Importance of Vacation Safety

Due to recent thefts of copper downspouts in the Township, Police Chief Dominick Bellizzie urges residents to take home safety more seriously than ever, particularly when away on vacation.

In December the police department received three reports about copper thefts from residents along Upper York Road, Upper Mountain Road, and Stony Hill Road.

All thefts occurred during the night, and numerous sections of downspouts and gutters were removed from each house.

Police urge anyone who sees or hears anything unusual during the night around their home to call 9-1-1 or 215-348-7400.

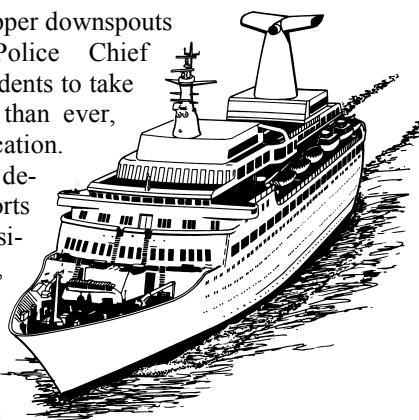

If your house has copper downspouts or gutters, police recommend taking extra measures to secure the piping to your dwelling. Residential security cameras can also assist police if any activity occurs around your house.

The vacation safety steps below can help decrease the likelihood of thieves seeing your home as opportunity for burglary while you are enjoying your vacation.

The theme of the tips is to "make your home look lived-in when you go away," Chief Bellizzie explained.

- Let friends and neighbors know when you will be away for vacation.
- Before you leave, let police know exactly when you will be away and how you can be reached.
- If you are leaving a car home, ask a neighbor to move it each day.
- Set any alarms and be sure the alarm company knows how to reach you.
- Don't leave trash or recycling cans at the roadside for pickup—ask a neighbor to move the cans for you at the appropriate times.
- Cancel newspapers (or have someone pick them up) and have the post office hold your mail.
- Set timers to turn lights on and off intermittently (don't leave the porch light—or other outside light—on all day and night).
- Lock all doors and windows.
- Don't leave valuables in plain sight.

For help with any non-emergency home safety concerns, contact Township Police at 215-297-8201 during business hours. 📞

Stormwater Pollution: Everyone's Problem

Part 3: Reducing Runoff

In addition to reducing the pollutants stormwater can pick up as it runs across the land, each of us can help manage stormwater so less of it runs off our properties, and more is absorbed by the soil.

Stormwater management used to emphasize removing water quickly from land to prevent flooding, but that sent large volumes of water rushing into local streams, which quickly eroded stream banks, muddying the water and changing the shape of the waterways.

Also, fast-moving stormwater picks up more pollution from lawns, farms, and roads, turning creeks and aquatic habitats into open storm sewers.

It is now understood that the key to proper stormwater management is slowing the rate of runoff. This allows time for rainwater to sink into the ground rather than run into storm drains.

Installing a rain barrel under your downspout is one easy way to keep rain on your property. These containers collect and store rainwater so it can later be used for watering plants, cleaning yard equipment, or topping off a swimming pool.

When collected in a rain barrel, stormwater can be released slowly, giving it time to seep into the soil.

Rain barrels also save money on household water use, provide plants with soft water (free of chlorine, lime or calcium), conserve water for use during drought, and can be designed to fit in nicely with your house and landscaping.

Rain gardens are another great way to reduce runoff and add beauty to your property.

Rain gardens are graded slightly to collect several inches of stormwater, which allows time for the water to seep into the soil or be used by the plants—two natural processes that filter the water and prevent it from polluting our waterways.

Rain gardens recharge our groundwater resources, and as an added benefit, attract butterflies, beneficial insects, and other wildlife.

We can also encourage infiltration by planting more native vegetation elsewhere on our properties, keeping grass tall enough to slow down water (three inches or higher), and installing silt fences during earth disturbance activities.

By using rain gardens and other stormwater management techniques at home, we can have a positive, cumulative effect on the quality and quantity of our drinking water. ♻️

New 2014 Township Fee Schedule

The Board of Supervisors adopted a new Township fee schedule in January.

The fee schedule covers everything from the purchase of copies of specific ordinances, to subdivision and land development fees, to building permit fees, and more.

The Township's extensive review of the actual costs associated with the fees resulted in a number of fees being reduced in the 2014 schedule.

The updated fee schedule is posted on the Township website under the Administration tab. ♻️

Township Targets Roads for Repairs

Working in his role as Roadmaster, Township Manager Dennis Carney recently inspected all Township roads to develop a new five-year plan that estimates which roads are likely to require repaving between 2014-2018.

At the beginning of each year of the plan, Dennis reviews the roads targeted for that year. Depending on road conditions, he pushes back the repaving of those that fared better than expected and moves up those that deteriorated faster than expected.

This year's list includes roads that will be repaved using a typical asphalt overlay as well as roads that will be repaved using a tar-and-chip treatment.

Asphalt overlay is required for roads that experience a high volume of traffic, while tar-and-chip treatment—which involves laying a coating of tar, embedding the tar with stone chips, and using a driveway-type sealer to create a smooth surface—can only be used on lightly travelled roads.

The following roads will be resurfaced as needed in 2014:

- Honey Hollow Road
- Great Oaks Road
- Sunset Drive
- Arboresque Drive
- North Sugan Road (from Mechanicsville Road to Sugan Close)
- Red Fox Drive
- Paddock Drive
- Bridlewood Drive
- Creamery Road (from Mechanicsville Road to Route 263)
- Paxson Road (from Comfort Road to Sugan Road)
- Hagan Drive
- Bogle Drive
- Parkside Drive
